Please join us for a day of celebrating women's leadership and hear from a distinguished panel of women about their career decisions and professional journeys.

MARCH 8, 2018 | 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Tinkham Veale University Center
Kelvin & Eleanor Smith Ballroom

After a welcome from Case Western Reserve University President Barbara R. Snyder, two panels of women leaders will provide thought-provoking discussion about taking risks and navigating transitions from their own experience taking on challenging new leadership roles.

Special guest speaker Virginia C. Addicott, President of FedEx Custom Critical, will discuss her career, development as a leader, and suggestions for building strong leadership skills.

WSDLI is a year-long program offering women professional staff an opportunity to develop skills through education, coaching and building networks. Its purpose is to provide a university-based resource and support system for women staff who want to expand their professional skills and develop their careers. At the end of this year, more than 100 women will have completed the program.
